

While Extreme Exposures was created in the "digital age," our experience in the offset printing industry dates back to the early 1980s where designs and layouts were created with photo typesetters, darkroom processing, and layouts using T-squares. This knowledge sets us apart from the "YouTube" generation designers who often lack real-world reproduction techniques to maintain original design fidelity. The digital age and technology developments have greatly enhanced the "speed" of the process, but nothing replaces years of hands-on experience, and that's what Extreme Exposures delivers to your commercial printing needs.

Examples of Commercial Printing Projects:

- Business Stationery to include business cards, letterheads, envelopes
- Business forms
- Sales literature - brochures, tear sheets, rack cards and posters
- POP Displays
- Event/Raffle Tickets
- Plastic Gift Card - Membership Cards

Extreme Exposures utilizes a network of various commercial printing vendors who specialize in certain reproduction methods and deliver fast turn-around project fulfillment at a fraction of the cost from years past. Clients may choose to handle order placement with vendors of their choice, or for a modest mark-up, let Extreme Exposures handle order placement, file uploading and job fulfillment responsibilities. Quotes are always provided beforehand and approved by clients before we place any farmed out reproduction.